Eliminating Racial Inequity in Discipline -A Community Workshop

9am-12pm

Saturday, October 12th

New Holly Gathering Hall

7054 32nd Ave South, Seattle WA

Speakers:

Susan Enfield, Superintendent, Highline Schools

Marcus Harden, SouthEast Seattle Education Coalition

Anita Morales, Seattle Public Schools

Emijah Smith, School-Family Partnerships Advisory Committee, Seattle Public Schools

Moderated by Veronica Santana-Uffret, Youth Undoing Institutional Racism & Scott Winn, City of Seattle Race and Social Justice Initiative

This workshop will focus on implementation of the Call to Action to Eliminate Racial Inequity in School Discipline. This comprehensive Call to Action is a result of the work of many organizations working on this issue. This Call to Action was adopted by the Race and Social Justice Community Roundtable and now additional groups are signing on to show their support and work on implementation.

The Roundtable is inviting groups of students, family members, teachers, administrators, and community based organizations to attend the October 12th workshop. We encourage you to recruit others from your school or organization to attend. The focus will be on implementation of strategies within schools, as well as across Districts. During the workshop we will discuss various alternative discipline and classroom practices, assess challenges, identify opportunities and hear from organizations that are working to eliminate racial inequities in discipline within their own organization.

We will start the day with a panel of leaders who are breaking new ground to achieve racial equity. In addition, there will be focused time for you to work with others from your school or organization.

Register for the event - <https://www.surveymonkey.com/s/EquityEducationOct-12-2013>.
Make sure to indicate if you will need childcare or interpretation.

If you would like to sign on to the call to action, please contact Scott Winn, Race and Social Justice Community Roundtable staff, at scott.winn@seattle.gov or 684-4541.

Georgetown is Haunted With History!

Take a unique look into Seattle's haunted historic past with the 9th Annual Georgetown Haunted History Tour. This one-of-a-kind evening walking tour and theatrical event is presented by the Friends of Georgetown History. Tours will start at 6:00pm, with numerous tours nightly, October 17th - 19th, departing from The Stables, 980 S Nebraska St in Seattle, WA. Tickets are $15 per adult and are available October 1, 2013 at brownpapertickets.com

A tour guide will lead you through the dark back streets of Georgetown while sharing hauntings and tales of the past. Hear stories of those "late" residents and how gambling, booze, and heart break played a role in their success or demise.

The entire tour is comprised of local actors and/or historians who are already enchanted with the lure of Seattle's oldest neighborhood's history. Costumes and good walking shoes are encouraged, as well as weather appropriate clothing. The tour goes on through rain, sleet, or windstorm!

And no tour of Georgetown would be complete without art, so be sure to see Spectrele, a chilling display of experimental art installations inspired by the Haunted History Tour.

A post-tour party will be hosted by FOGHi at The Stables each night of the tour and is complementary for ticket holders and their friends.

Friends of Georgetown History is a community club dedicated to the preservation of Seattle's historic Georgetown neighborhood. - See more at: <http://www.georgetownhistory.com/Tour>

Duwamish Alive

October 19th, 2013

9:30-10:00am

10:00-2:00pm

Duwamish Alive collaborates with community, municipalities, non-profits and businesses within the Duwamish River watershed to preserve and enhance habitat for people and wildlife, towards improving the health of Puget Sound.

For more information, email info@duwamishalive.org or call 206-418-8808. We provide the instructions, tools, snacks and coffee to keep you energized. The fine print: No experience necessary — we will discuss safety and give an overview of the project. The event will take place rain or shine. Dress for the weather (rain gear in case of bad weather or sunglasses and a hat if it's sunny). Wear sturdy foot gear (boots, sneakers, etc. but no sandals). Long trousers and long sleeves are helpful where there are blackberries. Bring work gloves and weeding tools if you have them. Bring a refillable water bottle. We will provide work gloves, tools, snacks, and beverages. Children 10 and under must have one-to-one adult supervision

EPA Enforcement

Some are learning the hard way that the federal Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) is stepping up enforcement concerning stormwater permits. Learn more about the EPA effort at a meeting in Georgetown Tuesday, October 22, starting at 4 p.m. The guest speaker is John Iani, a partner at the Perkins Coie law firm and a former EPA director for U.S. Region 10. The meeting is sponsored by the Manufacturing Industrial Council of Seattle. Attendance is free, but if you want to attend please RSVP to Christine Jones at 206-762-2470, or send her an email to christine@seattleindustry.org.

Stormwater enforcement in the region is usually conducted by the Washington State Department of Ecology (DOE). EPA is now taking the lead. EPA inspection and enforcement processes differ from those of the DOE. More information will be made available at the October 22 meeting.

Join Us for Green Seattle Day on November 2nd!

Join the Green Seattle Partnership to celebrate and restore Seattle's beautiful forested parks for the 8th annual Green Seattle Day on Saturday, November 2nd from 10 am to 2 pm!

Green Seattle Day is a meaningful way to connect with nature and create a healthy and vibrant community by planting native trees and shrubs in a park near you. The event takes place in 17 parks city-wide. Seattle's own West Duwamish Greenbelt is this year's central hub site, which will be hosted by Nature Consortium and Forterra.

The Green Seattle Partnership is a collaboration between the City of Seattle, non-profit partners, and thousands of committed volunteers that seek to create a sustainable network of healthy forested parklands by removing invasive species and replanting with native shrubs and trees. Without a coordinated effort, Seattle is at risk of losing 70% of its forests in just 20 years.

Green Seattle Day is a celebration of Seattle's 2500 acres of forested parks, the committed neighbors who care for them, and the kick-off event for the 2012-2013 restoration planting season. We supply all tools and supplies. So, grab a water bottle, roll up your sleeves, and get ready to have fun in the forest!
